Previously to the President's departure for Bedford, indications were not wanting of the disposition of the Administration to support Mr. Cobb for the succession in 1860, but the latter had no expectation of so early a declination of Mr. Buchanan. Though surprised, like a good captain, he at once set off to take possession of the position most important to himself, viz: Georgia. Stunned as he has been by Alex. Stephens' and and confort to ultraisms, he will work energetically during this yellow fever sea son to get a declaration of his State in his favor, for the President's expressions in favor of Joc. Lanc are considered by some as spring ng from a desire to have a small man for his successarby others as a means of making a diversion against Douglas in the Northwest.

New York, August 5.—A meeting of the Directors of the Eric road was to have been held to-day, to discuss the question of a change in the Fresidency, and other matters, but rain prevented a quorum. At the meeting yesterday, a resolution reducing the salary of the President to $5,000 was adopted, but it was afterwards fixed at $8,000. The amexed statement in regard to the Receivership, was prepared by the counsel of the Company.

On Thursday last a judgment was recovered against the New York and Eric Railroad for $5,500 on sinking fund bonds, and an execution issued the same day. Other suits were pending in which the same questions were involved, and it became plain that if bondholders wished to protect the property of the corporation, some steps must be taken at once. A requisition by holders of nearly a million of fourth mortgage bonds was made upon trustees of fourth and fifth mortgage, to proceed immediately for a foreclosure and the appointment of a receiver. The officers of the Company were notified of the requisition. A complaint was drawn, setting forth all the mortgages, and praying for a decree establishing and protecting the rights of all parties, and for the appointment of a receiver of all the property of the company, to be empowered to run the road, and pay the operative expenses and the interest on mortgages and other debts. The officers of the company, risiding to the emergency, did not resist the motion, and an order was made by Judge Mason, at Norwich, in Chanago County, on Tuesday, for the appointment of a receiver in the complaint. This will not necessarily or probably result in the destruction of any of the interest in property subsequent to mortgage debts. If the time has come for reduction of the capital of the Eric Kailrand, it can be done by mutual agreement between themselves, the property will be protected by the Court.

But if the holders of Eric stock and securities are wise, they will at once take steps for a new between themselves, the property will be pro-tected by the Court.

But if the holders of Erie stock and securities are wise, they will at once take steps for a new organization, which is inevitable, and restore this validable property to the custody of its owners. It is supposed that two or three weeks, will elapse before a receiver be named, and in will elapse before a receiver be named, and it the meantime arrangements may possibly be concluded which will obvitate the necessity of one. Certainly, if a receiver is to be name within two or three weeks who will supersed the present officers and directors, it appears to be child's play to be ro-organizing salaries and making new officers for such a short period. Such a step, if taken a year or two ago, might possibly have save saved the Eric Company from the present crisis. At all events, the same result would have been arrived at at a much smaller cost.

[From the St. Louis Evening Bulletin.] [From the St. Louis Evening Bulletin.]
Three pieces of the Atlantic cable, which were purchased by Messrs. Tiffany & Co., of New York, have been laid zeross the Mississippi at this place, in order to put the St. Louis office in connection with the Eastern lines. The first cable worked very well for about three weeks, the second about thirteen hours, and the third, which was laid last Saturday evening, gave out on Sunday night. On Thursday last the second cable was underrun by Messrs. G. H. Smith and Charles Wire, experienced electricians, but no flaw was discovered—northing perceptible to account for the cessation of the working capacity of the cable. The last cable was put to a good test, having been entirely submerged for over two hours before being laid.

The first cable was examined from St. Louis to near the Illinois shore, where the cable, having been imbedded in the sand, gave way. Up to the place of parting there was nothing perceptible that could lead to a discovery of the existing trouble. The third cable also furnishes us no evidence, whereby the cause of difficulty can be detected. would probably find yet further obstacles to signed elsewhere so honest, or perhaps so indiscreet, as that which we quote above from the Chicago Times of the 5th inst. Horse Cars vs. Onnibuses.—Opposition in the life of trade. This axiom was atrikingly exemplified on Randolph street on Saturday ast. The Railroad track was finished on Fri ing trips every half hour from State street t blocks of the Western limits of the city. The appearance of the cars was the signal for the Walker line of omnibuses to whip up. Busses were run every ten minutes—instead of three times an hour as heretofore. Speed was increased fully one-third—the passengers being paid through regardless of horse flesh, and the fare was reduced to three cents—that is, 30 tickets were sold for a dollar, which is the cents—that is, 30 tickets were sold for a dollar, which is the cents—that is, 30 tickets were sold for a dollar, which is the cents—that is, 30 tickets were sold for a dollar, which is the cents—that is, 30 tickets were sold for a dollar, which is the contract of the cents—that is a set of th ject in view. We have heard it suggested that it Walker & Co., maintain a sharp opposition line and cut under in fare, that the Railway Company will be obliged to buy the "busses off at a round figure, or as people on the streets term it, "pay right amart blackmail" to have the competition abated. But in the meanwhile the public will reap the advantage of three cent omnibus rides, trips every five minutes, and a choice of rehiels.

Anorem Science.—"Who Seew all These."
On Friday afternoon last, Coroner James was called to hold an inquest upon the body of a German samed David Lehman, residing on the read leading to Blue Island, who committed suicide by hanging himself with harness reins in a barn.

Deceased, a brother of a well known brewer of this city, had been until recently living with the laster, until a week or two since. He was muco addicted to driak, and his brother, in order to cure him if possible, sent him to work on the farm of Daniel Scipp, about half a mile west of the toll gate, on the Blue Island. He however managed to obtain liquor, and on Friday, probably while in a state of derangement caused by liquor, he went out to the barn and deliberately committed saicide. He took the reins from a harness and fastened one end to a notch in the "upright," put the other round his neck by a peculiar knot, and jumped from the manger. Lehman was a single man, about thirty-six years of age. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the facts.

The evidence recently on this point indicates TIME.-A change of the time of running the briate is cut to pieces by the flying wheels of an express train. The body of a drunkard it taken from the river. Another is found in the water near the Sag. A drunken fight on the West Side lodges a criminal in the jail to an awer to a homicide, and gives the Coroner fresh victim. The Demon of denk, of a verity has kept Coroner James very busy of late.

It is hardly credible that the French Govern-made himself a volunteer party to the suit.

It is hardly credible that the French Government will push these demands to the point of a war with the United States or Great Britain, or both,—both having guarranteed the independence of the interesting httle kingdom. The absurdity of its claim to dictate changes in the language of the islands, is only equaled by the impossibility of complying with it. The English tongue, by force of Missionary effort and commercial relations, has become a part of the civilization of the country. It is used in all business transactions, courts of justice, custom disation of the country. It is used in all business transactions, courts of justice, custom houses, government offices, and schools. An attept to place the Gallic dialect on a footing of equality with it, would be an effort to alter the nature of things. A former citizen of Illinois, the Hon. David L. Gregg, is King Kamehameha's Minister of Finance. A demand on the part of the French government, that His Majesty should appoint Monsieur Perrin Minister of State, would be far more reasonable and vastly easier of compliance than the requirement that the language of Voltaire be established among the people at par with that of Shakspeare.

A Wonderful Conversion.

But the "hour and the woman" had not come for the Senor until last Kew Year's day, when he met the fair heroine of this true tale, and surrendered at discretion. Who are the Murderers.

As the public may feel interested in some particulars relating to the food which has intained a dismat sotoriety by the fatal safar of the Schaticoke Bridge, we compile the following from the Annual Report, receutly published, of Yan R. Richmond, Esq., State Engineer and

Surveyor:
The length of the road is thirty-three miles nearly. It extends from Albany northward to Eagle Bridge. The capital stock, by its charter, is $600.000, of which $439,004 97 is represented to have been paid in.

A person named Philip Ford, the Treasurer, is a communication to the State Engineer and officer to contribute toward the establishment of the Heald, than to the Chicago Times, which, when established, received ten times as much in this yay is the Herold. When the Times was established, every Formasse and roats agent in History as Mack mailed for contributions. A mark someoracy was rated by Mr. Douglas according to the extent of his contribution to the Times and, and early official who refused or failed to? point up," was unceremoniously decapitated by request of Mr. Douglas, who then controlled the federal appointments in this State. It sent a letter with a prospectus of the Times is all the Postmasters in the State, as an intimation that if they did not contribute and work for that paper, they would be removed from office, and hundreds of cases might be cited of removals from office in consequence of non-attention to this private manifester of that extremely diminutive "giant." But, now, the rule is reversed. Now, Mr. Douglas hinks that office holders who contribute toward establishing a paper to defend the Affimisteration and themsaless, ought to be removed. The men whom he, in the Senate, stigmatized as "common thevers" and whom his organ, the Times, has repeatedly branded as villains and vagabonds, have no right, he thinks, to contribute to the establishment of a journal to defend them against such foul and false aspersions, but, rather, because they choose thus to defend themsafes, they ought to be removed from office. Such is the present doctrine of Sinaleross, who has spent the last ten days in prying into the affairs of the Herald office.

The Chicago Times and the Aurora Beacon.
The Chicago Times has been taking some pains to plow up a horner's nest in the peaceful town of Aurora. On Saturday last it (the Times) had a very bilious article on the Aurora Beacon, as a succedaneum to a former article criticizing the Beacon's review of Rufus Choate. As the Times had not the courtesy to give the Beacon's article an insertion in its columns, we copy the extract which so curdled the milk of human kindness entrance into the Court House where the crowd had assembled:

At this particular moment it was expected that the long pent up enthusiasm would have broken forth, greeting the first appearance of the conquering here, with a shout that would have knocked the breath out of the Republicans, if, indeed, it didn't shake down the old Court House; but for some reason the shout didn't come, the enthusiasm wasn't there: a solitary rap tap of Dr. Wood's came and a stamp from Gillaspy's foot, necessarily heavy, gave the signal, bit it was no go-perhaps owing to an over sight in neglecting to concert a more imposing entrance under an escort fitting in numbers and party respectability, instead of leaving the great man to find his way through the storm under the solitary guidance of a Black Republican, who was reluctantly and as a matter of humanity pressed into the service, being perhaps, allitie shy of being out in the dark alone with so terrible a fellow, who was going to chaw up all the Republicans in so sudden and remorseless a manner; or, perhaps they were awed into silence by the imposing appearance of their beloved chief, or peradrenture, they were overcome by emotions of joy on having before them ceular demonstration that their heredistry chiefhain had so mercifully escaped from Spanish arms; or, still again, it is not improbable that they were husbanding their voices to give fitter and louder applause, which the impeding exhibition of rhetorical and oratorical powers would provoke. At all events, whatever may have been the reason, the applause was not fortheoming up to that particular stage of the proceedings, and the General was compelled, after joining Mr. Kirkwood in a request that insmund as this was Mr. K's appointment, and he apoke only he courtagement at once to the preacribed task of skinning Rirkwood and annihilating the Republicans.

or encouragement at once to the prescribed task of skinning Kirkwood and annihilating the Republicans.
But, ye trods and little fishes, there never was so audden a transition from the sublime to the ridiculous, and the wet habiliments which those anxious and expectant Democrate had worn in from the storm, were no comparison to the saturation of the west blanket which so quickly fell upon them. Was this Dodge the veritable Augustus Casar, whose sledge hammer logic, and thoughts that breathed and words that burned, were to gather again the lost sheep of the House of Locofocoism, and to scatter to the four winds the victorious legions of Republicanism?
Alas, what a fall was there my countrymen. Never did a great man appear so small; and it was int curbarrassment either—that might have provoked sympathy; but it was sheer incapacity, accompanied with the most diagusting vanity, arrogance, malice, and a manner compounded of "Big Iodian" and Bombastes Furioso. He strutted back and forth on the stand, stamped the floor with his heel, made the most uncouth gestures, giving utterance the while to a mess of disconnected flustian and mixed up sentences, one running into another and never coming out, that would have disgraced a school-boy. We haveno besitation in saving that a dozen of our Democrata, not including the submartest, can that would have diagraced a school-boy. We have no besitation in saying that a dozen of our Democrats, not including the smartest, can make a better speech. The only points recollectable were that he had come back to lowa, and serebile diets, found that things had; stood still in the interim; but the people of lowa had proceeded to build radiroads, adopt a new Constitution, remove the Capitol, form the Republican party, and do aundry other things, in his absence and without his consent. He had a good deal to say about the great things. Republican party, and do aundry other things, in his absence and without his consent. He had would of it elected, loaving the seat things he would of it elected, loaving the seat things he would take the control of public afford the his own hands, dispensing with legislative departments, everts, &c., as needless incumbrances; he didn't like Grimes, of his town, pretty well, nor Harlan any better, because one had got into his seat, and the other into Jones; he thought the South much abused, that it ought to be pacified, and didn't wonder that they should want to take their property to the Territories? Henry Cisy was a pretty elever man after all, and once shook hands with him; had considerable to say about agitation, fanatics, abolitonies, &c., and so went on for about half an hour, when his ammunition manifestly began to give out, and he appealed to Dr. Wood in a manner which everybody understood to mean. for God's aske say time is up; but the Doctor was too obtuse to take the hint, and gave him twenty minutes more. Gillaspy, who had all this time been endeavoring to allay his nervous-ness, now handed a note to the General, but the couldn't read it on account of obscure vision, as be said; thought here might be other topics to treat of, but time was limited, and sat down after expending just fifty minutes upon, we are free to say, one of the poorest specches that a man, big or little, ever perpetrated in lowa. Democrats present did not attempt to conceal their chaggin and mortification.

Account of Mr. E. R. Lewis.

[From the Albany Statesman.]

Mr. E. E. Lewis of Genesee was a passonger on the ill-fated train. He was riding in the front ear, toward the rear end. We take his Mr. E. E. Lewis of Genesee was a passenger on the ill-fated train. He was riding in the front ear, toward the rear end. We take his statement as related to us in a conversation at Stanwix Hall.

As the cars went on to the bridge, Mr. Lewis remembers distinctly feeling a sort of jar or jerk, which gave him the momentary impression that something was wrong—but before the thought could form itself distinctly in his mind, the crush came. Mr. L. suddenly felt the car planging downward, as it were, and falling to pieces. The second plunged under the first, and tore out the sides ar d bottom. Mr. L. was strown violently forward, head first, striking, as he supposed, against the top of the second car, turned and felt to the bottom, on the top of a number of persons.

After resting for twenty minutes, shaking hands with a number of persons, taking a little refreshment, and changing his dres, he started again bare-headed, and went rapide for a short distance; suddenly he made a feint dropped on the rope, and a shudder ran throughthe crowd, numbers exclaiming. "He is down!" But he was only down on the rope, and ina twinkling he was standing on his head, the behancing pole beneath him, and to which he heldon with his hands. He moved a little further and then disencumbered of his pole, he rose up on his head amid the wildest enthusiasm of the beholders. Six times he repeated this freak, interpersed with aumnersaults and 4her daring feats. At one time he would be statched upon his back, presently he would fallforward and roll backward again. He next tiedhis pole to the rope, and proceeded a short distance by tumbling again, he suspended himself from the rope by his hands, and then by hisfore, at last langing by one foot over the boiling chasm.—A feeling of awe took possession of many on beholding this fearless freak, whis others applanded to the very echo, and mad the well, ring with their boisterous cheers. The acrobat finally reached the platform on he American side, having occupied precisely meteen minutes five seconds.

thrown violently forward, head first, striking, as he supposed, against the top of the second ear, turned and fell to the bottom, on the top of a number of persons.

For an instant there was not the slightest noise—not a shriek of terror or a groan of pain So instantaneous was the destruction that every person's energies appeared paralyzed. The first words that Mr. L. remembered hearing, for he was himself, if not stunned, entirely bewildered, were delivered in a very cain voice, and were, "Say, you at the top, get off just as quick as you can, won't you?" as if this was the signal for a recovery of consciousness, it was immediately followed by agonizing shriess and groans and loud cries for help.

Mr. Lewis extricated himself from the wreek as speedily as possible, and the first person he recognized was Mr. Cooley, the conductor. He had been thrown violently forward the entire length of the car, and had crawled back to where his wife, her mother and child had sat. Mrs. Cooley and Mrs. Coyley and yapparently in the position they had occupied in the ear. Their fast were up and their heads and the upper part of their bodies were buried in the wreek. Mr. Cooley sank almost helpless by the side of his wife, whom he apparently recognized by her dreus, at which he was pulling, now beseeching assistance for her, and now calling piteously upon her name, and beseeching her to rise and save herself.

Mr. L. feeling faint and sick at the stomach, made his way to the water, in which he bathed his temples and wrists. Ashe did so, two gentlemen badly cut on the head rushed to him asking if they were dangerously hurt.

He advised them to wash their wounds in water, which they did. He then returned to the wreck and made for Mr. Cooley, who was still puling at the dress of his wife, although him on the badk.

Mr. L. feeling him to let him take him ashore, but Cooley only replied by begging him to help his wife. After some difficulty, and not without being compelled to epuch hasably see him, he aucceeded in getting him out of th Trip of the Winans Stamer.

This vessel made another experimental trip down the bay on Saturday last, 49; 30, with the happiest results. Every trip at made has been in the persuance of a pinn laid down in the beginning, looking to the accurate ascertainment of all the points involved in the novel development, with a view to arriving so: at merely antisfactory results, but at the vary best results attainable under any possible state of circumstances. The form of the vessel, the pitch of the crew, the number of the biades, their size and proportions, the application of atoma, the quantity of fuel, the number of revolutions, have been all in their turn, experimented on: sometimes giving more favorable results, sometimes merely indicating the direction in which improvement was to be looked for. It was one of these experiments, with a change is the pitch of the screw, and looking to the consumption of net, which was tried on Saturday, the vessel proceeding to Anuapolis, and lying for a short time off the Naval School.

The result was in every respect of fiscen miles an hour, carefully timed by the busy, was attained with thirty-six revolutions pir minute, the boilers working to about one tiling of their capacity; and it being, even to the inexpert in these matters, apparent that they were playing with their work. As the experiment was made looking with their work. As the experiment was made looking with their work.

-On the field at Solferino, Francis Josep is said to have addressed an angry reproof to one of his oldest Generals, who instantly broke his sword across his knee and threw it at his feet; the Emperor burst into tears and held or both his hands begging pardon for the offence is absolutely convinced that the authors ar William and Mary Howitt. He believes the in ternal evidence in favor of this proposition to be irrefragable, long ago at Hamilton College, New York, tell the following in the last New York Picagune:

Sizz: If your Majesty, consulting mly the superiority of your arms, had allows the war to continue, the general opinion in Pace, and perhaps in Europe, is that nothing slid have retarded your irresistible march, as hat Magenta and Solferine would have besfollowed by fresh triumphs. Why, then, didle kipperer resolve to stop at the height of fonce?

He then proceeded to answer his communition. the following in the last New York Programs:

"I was lately describing to "The Bishop", wedding I had witnessed in New York, an was eulogizing the beauty of the bride, o whom had shone the light of only eighteen sum mers. The hardened offender merely repliet
'You would express her age more satisfactorily
according to the present style of skirts, by sat ing that eighteen springs had passed over he

far from the edge as not to interfere with the man.

Three soldiers were placed in front of these platforms standing on the ground, and each opposite one of the faces. The moment the word of command was given each man jumped at the edge of the first platform; caught st; raised himself up so as to turn up one elbow, and so get on the top; jumped in like manner at the second platform, and got on it, and then upon the third. All this was done so quickly, in fact with such startling rapidity, that I can readily understand the confusion of the Austrians at the startling movements of the French soldiers. It seemed but an instant before the same three soldiers who had been standing motionless upon the ground in front of the platforms were standing just as motionless upon the highest platform, waiting for the next command. At the word they descended in the same way, and stood once more upon the ground.

In a yard attached to the gymnasium I noticed a jumping ditch, some two feet deep and about four feet wide at one end, spreading out to short nine feet at the other. It was about to short nine feet at the other. It was about the feet long, so that the widening was sufficiently gradual.

Here was also a strong plank fence, with a roof on top, forming a sort of shed, with the back toward you, and about fifteen feet high. The roof did not lap over the fence, but was securely fastened to it, as was also a strong iron rod running along the fence at its junction with the roof. Slats of incf plank were nailed on this fence, about three inches apart, and the whole fence aloped out from the bottom to the top, so that when a man charght hold of the slats with his fingers his feet would swing clear, and he could thus get no assistance from them in climbing. a good some may been opened and in successful operation more than a year past. The same three soldiers who had scaled the platforms were placed in front of this fence. At the word of command each jumped at it with fingers hooked like claws, and, having no hold but what the slats gave them, they clawed their way up quickly to the top. There, catching hold of the bar, they doubled themselves up in a most curious way, turning a back somerset. "Very well, place yourself in position as a boxer."

I did so and he advanced towards me with his hands a hitle out from his sides like a wrestler ready to take hold in any way.

"Now I can kick you on your forward leg, and break the bone or hurt you. While you the disturbed by that, or, in case you draw it back, I can raise my foot to your stomach or your chin."

"That is very clever. Is there any parry to that?"

"Oh! yes. It is very simple. You do what I did, and I'll show you."

I kicked; he aught my foot; I turned, threw myself on my hands, and thought of course to kick him with my other foot; but he simply put one foot firmly against the thigh of my other leg, and I was powerless. There was this movements also this same startling rapidity. The kicks were like flashes of lightlungs, and the hands constantly ready for a grappie or a blow. From what I aw I have a most respectful dislike to la Sarate, or, as we would say in English, the Old Shoe.

It is impossible to cultivate the body to any great extent without also thereby cultivating the mind. Quick and intelligent action of the body brings quick and intelligent action of the brain. A manly self-respect grows with the consciousness of individual power, and this feeling is festered by the general regulations of the earmy; no French soldier is ever struck; his person is sacred from all blows. An amusing story about this was once told me by an exsoldier:

"I was with Soult in the retrest from Spain.

We had divided the Adverse from Spain.

brotherhood. Each man knows his place and keeps it, but not stiffly. In consequence of this, the men are better cared for and their complaints meet with more attention. The officer himself who listens to them may have risen from the ranks; for the French army is far more democratic than our own, and there is no law or regulation to prevent the common soldier from rising to the highestrank. There is, however, a barrier which prevents almost all from rising heyond a certain point, and that is, the want of education. Yet this, also, is to a certain extent cared for. Press & Tribune.

Male Gossip at a Watering Place.

A correspondent of the Boston Journal than leasantly hits off the male gossips at New plenantly hits off the male gossips at Newport:

"Notes of a half hour's conversation would be like the bedynilt speech of a member of the last Congress, made up of sentences extracted from some twenty volumes of old debates—ere-rything but originalisty is abundant. The politics of Europe, the morning's bathing, the next Presidential election, yachting, he Sickles case, fashion, with four hundred and ninety-four other topics; are discussed, and generally with great self-complacency. Of all men intoxicated with self-importance, the foremost are New Yorkers who have made a galloping visit to 12:40 rate, discussing the fate of nations and the extoraions of eacht de-place with equal flippancy. Next to them are the Union savers, who are firmly impressed that unless they are placed in command of the Ship of State, she will founder a firmly impressed that unless they are placed in command of the Ship of State, she will founder if once; especially arteriors are those wooder at once; especially arteriors are those whose it to clevate themselves on an acquaintance with Daniel Webster as a pedestal, and who are eternally harping on the readness with which they once subscribed a few dollars for the payment of his expenses. There are the literary talkers, too, who know Whipple, and have written for Appleton's Encyclopedia; 'he legal talkers, who regard you as a juty of twelvenen before whom they will argue pro or one for a consideration; the one idea talkers, who fasten you by the battou hole to their hobby; and then comes the young gents, who say (and any little leab Las pot a suthary?" Its Discipline Described by a New York Traveler,

(From the N. Y. Evening Post.)

The French army is certainly one of the best developed bodies of men that the world has sever seen. Formed almost entirely of conscripts, the sons of honest families, it draws its strength from the best blood of the mation. For sever years they are kept circulating through France, except when each regiment takes its turn to the second of honest families, it draws its strength of the second of honest families, it draws its strength of the second of honest families and the extorsions of calcid-de-place with equal flowers army, from the contracted circles of their inities communes; and the sons of the poorest villagers enjoy the pleasures and reap the prolities of travel.

Each individual of this mass is taught to walk, to stand, for run, to jump, to awim, to climb, to handle the small sword and the broadsword, to mange the masket and the bayonet, with such a mange the masket and the bayonet, with such a mange the masket and the bayonet, with such a mange the masket and the bayonet, with such a mange the masket and the bayonet, with such a mange the masket and the bayonet, with such a standard to the strength of the trooper, or even the far-reaching and more formidable lance.

Paris is the centre of this system, and having one day obtained the necessary permit, I had an opportunity of seeing how seedilously this that has a decended to. There were not more but it must be remembered that those who also with the proper platforms as mailer than the one below it by about eighteen inches, enough to make comfortable standing room for a ram. The Hay Track of Churco — The Hay Track The Hay Trade or Chicago.—The Hay Trade of this city promises to become a most important branch of commerce. During the present season, owing to the high price of hay in the Eastern States, quite a new demand has sprung up for our upland prairie hay, and to supply it

Buffalo, and we understand that parties are here from several parts of Ohio and Pennsylvania for the purpose of making heavy purchases. The price at which the above lot was sold was The price at which the above lot was sold was $8.00 per ton. In Buffalo, it is worth from $14@ 16 per ton; and in Cleveland and Fittsburgh, we understand it ranges from $15@20. We occasionally see parsgraphs in agricultu-ral and other papers, speaking very dispara-gingly of the hay taken from our prairies. One Chicaco paper not long are said it was useless. gingly of the hay taken from our prairies. One Chicago paper not long ago said it was useleas. Those who have fed stock in Illinois know it to be far otherwise. Some years the crop is not as good as others, for grass like grain is liable to partir failure; but that which grows on our nigh rolling prairies is generally good, and sometimes as nutritious as timothy. This season we understand the quality is excellent. State are owned or controled largely in ani-waukes, this boasted agreement amounts to just nothing at all. The selfling rate for exchange is 2t per cent premium in Milwaukee, precisely what it is here, giving the "wild-cats" a large margin for profits. We learn from our bankers that when exchange is scarce at "current rates" the bills of one Wisconsin bank are returned with a sweeting of new control additional for "brok. The POTATO CROP IN IRLANN.—The following reference to the potato crop of Ireland is from the Mercantile Advertiser, which the London Times calls "a careful authority:

"We have now passed the time when, in former years, accounts of appearances of blight in the potato crop usually began to appear. As yet, fortunately, there have not been even rumors of disease in the growing crop, unless from one or two western districts; and the potatoes, which are in very abundant supply at the Irish markets, are excellent in quality. Owing, however, to the severe frosts at the commencement of May, a considerable portion are small in size, and we fear that this complaint is rather genon the other hand the margin above the par value of the bonds deposited with the Auditor is larger here, and hence Illinois currency is by that much safer than that of Wisconsin. On the

the Wool Clip of Wisconsin for the present year. It says:

As the wool trade has now fairly closed, we take the opportunity to present our readers with what statistics we have been able to obtain in regard to the season's business. From reliable information in our possession, we can safely state that the wool clip of Wisconsin, for 1859, will fully reach, if it does not exceed, ONE MILLION OF TOUNDS. Our estimate is based on the following statement which has been submitted to some of the principal dealers here, and is believed by them to be sufficiently correct for all practical purposes: of ONR BUNDARD AND THIRTT-FIVE POLLARS in three, five, and ten cent pieces. Another redeemed $355 in three days, in the same kind of coin. Now we submit that such banking is the as arrived up with California mails of h. The money market at San Francisco ht. Flore $9.00 per barrel.

It is at best a maisance which we trost that such banking is the worsk kind of humbug, if indeed it be not some thing worse, and intensely more wicked than that Miramon had issued a decree imposes any tax upon a every citizen of Mexico, g the priests. No other event of important transmission of the principal operators, and all with whom we have spoken on the subject agree that it falls short at least 100,000 Bs. of the full clip of the state.

The average price paid is variously estimated at from 30 to 42c; we take a middle ground and place it at 41c. The general range was from 33 to 42c, but occasionally some inferior lots went as low as 22c, and not unfrequently some very superior lots sold as high as 45 and 48c. Amongst the latter were most of the heavy shearings, and upon the whole, we think the average is not certainly below 41c. Then assuming these estimates to be nearly correct, we have 60s.sum of $410,000 realized by the farmers of our State for their wool clip this season's yield with those of former years, as no statistics in regard to this branch of our trade "that we know of" have been preserved. It is known, however, to be larger, and somewhat better in quality than that of any previous year. In 1850, according to the ceusas, there were 124,596 head of sheep in Wisconsin, which at an average of 35 pounds of wool to each sheep, would indicate a yield of some 437,000 pounds in the State. All the dealers with whom we have conversed seemed inclined to yield the palm to Wankesha county, as a whole, for marketing the cleanest and best quality of wool.

idly adhered to with reference to the importers of New York. We deem it our duty again and again to refer to this matter in order, if possible to save the West from yielding to the importanities of New York agents and drummers, whose great anxiety, now that the warehouses of that city are filled with usaless foreign gewgaws, is to impose them upon Western merchants. Our people cannot too rigidly adhere for another year at least to the debt paying policy. Even had we an abundance of means, would it not be as well, say would it not be far better that our wives and daughters be dressed with neatness and simplicity and that we all avoid those foreign luxuries which drain the country of its resources and minister only to a 446 bu wheat; no corn or oals.

We need not discouss at length the events which are distinctly foreshadowed by these significant facts. Either the goods must be left in the hands of the New York importers, involving the weakest and most reckless of them in certain bankrupty, or they must be purchased by the merchants of the doubtry and the entire people be made partakers of the folly of the importers. If the West does not escape from this new danger it shall not be for want of timely warning. We entrest our merchants to buy very sparingly—especially of foreign luxuries, only half of what they think will be purchased and paid for. As far as possible, let purchases
